

The Christmas Disaster

A long time ago there was a girl named Ashely. Ashely's family was very wealthy, and they lived in a mansion. It was Christmas time and that's her favourite kinda day of the year. But this year would be different because there was a virus called COVID-19 and that meant no Christmas shopping and maybe no Christmas for her. For her, Christmas meant everything because every year she and her family went to her cousins in Holland but now she may or may not get to go anywhere. After a day or so she found out that all the flights were cancelled and she came downstairs and saw that all the Christmas decorations were gone.

- Where are the Christmas decorations and the presents and the Christmas tree?! she asked her parents.

-Sweetheart there might not even be a Christmas this year because of the virus, they replied.

-But I know that we can not travel anywhere but we can still have Christmas right? She asked.

-No, I´m so sorry sweetheart.

She was devastated and ran up to her room. Suddenly she stopped and remembered something she had read in a book. It was that if you do stuff at home like crafts you don't need to shop. But then Ashley then realized that some families don't get any presents. And then when her mom came home she saw it and then her dad came down and didn't know what had happened. They told me what happened and everybody hugged each other. Har dad and mom put 4 Christmas gifts without anyone looking and they all had a perfect Christmas but in a different way than expected.
